The college panda sat essay pdf free full word list

The next step is to either import someone else's deck or write your own. Why I Don't Like Physical Flash Cards and Lists When you look at what some students go through to cram some vocab in their heads, it's no wonder most students don't bother. Your time is probably better spent reviewing concepts and doing practice exams. Students of mine have memorized all 400 (well, there's actually 405 in the deck) in as little as 2-3 weeks, 15 minutes per day. Definitions are as student-friendly as possible and each card also includes the part of speech and the percentage of times the word has shown up in past released exams. No peeking at the definition like you would on a wordlist. Good luck!Regards,Brian copyright 2002-2022 Brian R. Or, even easier (and possibly cheaper): just go to the College Board or Khan Academy website, download those same 10 PDFs for free, and simply print them out at home. The drawbacks to this method are that the pages will be harder to organize, and that you will incur printing and paper costs. Step 6: Once you begin studying, consider scheduling some time with me or another private tutor. If you do find the need to learn more words, feel free to search for a shared deck that is more comprehensive. Not knowing which words to review. And when you do stop, you feel guilty for not studying more. If you're particularly ambitious, you can configure that setting to a higher amount or review more often than once per day. In fact, it's so overwhelming that most students either give up after a certain point or don't start at all. Then there's the problem of going over words you already know but you're not sure you know. Meet Anki Anki is a spaced-repetition software that manages flashcards and presents them to you at the optimal time. Now simply double click on the downloaded file and the entire deck will automatically be imported into Anki. Nothing happens unless you study. That way, you're maximizing your time with unfamiliar words while still maintaining a connection with the ones you've done. Anki sets the amount of words you review each day so you know when to stop and you won't feel guilty about it. While it does takes repetition at regular intervals for our brains to fully process and store information, Anki makes this ridiculously easy. Words that you already know will show up the least often while words you struggle with will show up more frequently. Tips I recommend placing Anki in your dock (Mac OS) or on your Desktop (Windows) to make it easy to review. As long as you do Anki at least once per day, it's algorithm will space out old words at certain times and throw new words into the mix. Click here to download the anki deck. Remember that Anki can also be done online through Ankiweb and on your smartphone; decks can be synced on all devices. Currently it's offered in October, January and May. These are the best three months to take the test, because otherwise there will no way to review incorrectly answered questions with your tutor afterward.Step 8: Take at least 2-3 full practice tests in the weeks leading up to the real thing to make sure your score is where you need it to be. Step 9: On the morning of the test, read my SAT test-day tips for a final time. Step 10: Repeat if necessary. Most students score highest the second or third time they take the SAT. After you've installed it, open it up and you should have a blank slate with just the "Default" deck. Stacks of flash cards sprawled out across the desk. Anki can be used and synced with any computer or phone, so you have easy access to your daily flashcards wherever you are. There's nothing more intimidating than pages upon pages of SAT words and their definitions. So let's download the shared deck so that you can get started right away. The SAT will test you on much more but I've found that 400 is the perfect dose to get the greatest score improvement with the least amount of effort. My students have used the other shared decks but they are either too overwhelming (with thousands of words) or riddled with typos and bad definitions. Anki also makes it ridiculously easy to edit or add cards. Or thinking you know the definitions when you really don't. Working with a private tutor is the very best way to maximize your score, for a variety of reasons: 1) You are given personalized attention, lessons tailored to fit your schedule, and the opportunity to discuss each question in-depth until you are fully satisfied. 2) Private tutors are usually the best instructors. 3) A skilled private tutor will serve as a friend and confidant, hold you accountable, give you specific assignments and work on any problem areas so that all you have to do is put in the effort. Sign up for the QAS service in advance if you can--it costs extra but it's worth it. However, don't overpay for an "elite" class or a score "guarantee"; these types of classes are all very similar, focusing mostly on test content and basic strategies for the average student. First, check out my free SAT e-book, Master the SAT, and my simplified list of recommended SAT prep books on Amazon.Then...Step 1: Take a practice test to determine your baseline score. You can find 8 free, official practice SATs, along with answer explanations, on the College Board / Khan Academy websites (make sure to print them out before you take them). Or, simply buy the paper book instead. The entire test — Reading, Writing and Language, Math No Calculator, Math With Calculator — takes around 3.5 hours, and should be taken all at once, if possible, or split into a maximum of two parts.Already ran out of the first 10 tests? You can find PDFs of 47 official SATs and PSATs here. To learn more about the new digital SAT that debuts in 2023-24, please read this blog post.Step 2: Set a score goal. My students' score improvements on the new SAT (400-1600 scale) are about 150-200 points.Step 3: Start working on the content of the test.My Top 11 SAT Prep Resources, Ranked.Vocabulary - SAT Vocab Capacity free e-book / Word Root List / Mnemonic Videos (Please note that vocab is still important, but less essential, on the new SAT.)Math - College Panda / A Guide to the Math SAT / Khan Academy / SAT Quantum / Cliff's Notes Math Review for Standardized Tests / PWN the SAT Math Guide / SAT Math Tips / This formula sheet and this formula sheet and this blog post by meReading / Writing and Language (Grammar) Sections - The Ultimate Guide to SAT Reading (a.k.a. The Critical Reader) / The Ultimate Guide to SAT Grammar / College Panda Writing and Language Guide / SAT Writing Tips / Prepositional Idiom List / Complete SAT Grammar Rules If you are looking for an online SAT self-study program that tracks your strengths and weaknesses in each area of learning, then I can recommend Khan Academy, which is a free service that has partnered with the College Board to provide online SAT drills and practice. Fair warning: the individual practice questions on Khan Academy are not official College Board SAT questions, but they are similar. For additional help, consider a private tutor like me who can point you in the right direction.Step 4: (only recommended for lower-scoring students): take an SAT classroom course. These types of classes can be helpful for low scorers who need all the time, practice and repetition they can get. McElroyFounder and President, McElroy Tutoring Inc. First, you don't know when to stop. A deck is a stack of flashcards. Simply talking about the questions with your tutor helps aid your understanding of each question and your test-taking strategies.Homework:As a general rule, students should spend at least one hour on homework for every hour they spend with their tutor. The usual homework assignment is 3-4 sections from the book (approximately 1.5 hours), working from the front to the back. Students should time themselves, and mark the question where they run out of time, but continue working past the time limit if necessary. Full practice tests should also be taken periodically, at the discretion of the tutor. The goal is to eventually complete all 8 tests in the book, and possibly more.HOW TO GRADE TESTS AND HOMEWORK: Either don't grade your homework and just let your tutor grade it for you, or grade it yourself (the answers are in the back), but please do not indicate the correct answers anywhere on the test.When re-trying questions previously answered incorrectly, it is best not to know the correct answer — or even one's previous answer — beforehand. This is known as the "blind review" method, and is where the second, blank copy of the book comes in.Step 7: If you haven't done so already, then register for the SAT. The SAT is administered 7 times a year, on varying days: October, November, December, January, March, May, and June.Three times a year, the SAT offers what's called the Question and Answer service (QAS), which allows you to view the actual test questions as well your answers (you will be mailed a physical copy of the test booklet about 5-6 weeks after the test). It's also probably the single most painful thing to do when studying for the SAT's. Luckily for you, I have made a free deck for everyone containing the top 400 words (using an outside analysis of over 60 released exams). Sorry, there just isn't a way to just look at a word once and remember it forever. email: mcelroy@post.harvard.eduToll-Free: 1-866-584-TUTOR (8886), x 4Direct (Call or Text): 619-889-2935www.McElroyTutoring.com Back to Blog Home If you've read this previous post, you should know that the single most important thing required to do well on critical reading is to memorize vocabulary. You may meet with me for anywhere from 30 minutes to 100 hours, but most students need at least 15-25 hours for a full preparation. I recommend scheduling a 15-minute phone consultation with before the first lesson, to discuss timelines, scheduling, and the unique needs of the student(s). Instead, save your money for a qualified private tutor later on in the process. In addition, the so-called guarantees are usually full of fine print, so it's quite difficult to actually get your money back, even if you feel that you should qualify. Step 5: If you haven't done so already, buy 2 copies of the Official SAT Study Guide (I recommend keeping a second, blank copy for the purpose of reviewing questions without bias), and buy a good graphing calculator if you don't have one already. Numerous research studies have found that the best way to remember something is to regularly encounter it just as you're about to forget it. By default, Anki starts you off with 20 words each session, but you can easily adjust this number in the options. Anki's flashcards force you to be honest with yourself. The important thing is to make it a habit to review the words. Fortunately, there's a free program that solves all those problems and makes the whole process of memorizing things as painless as possible. You may also find helpful information in my Grades 9-12 document, Getting Started First, download Anki for your computer at Install the program onto your computer. Sure, memorizing thousands of words is ultimately better, but the returns would be less and less. Either you can recite the definition or you can't. There are several things that make stacks of flash cards and gigantic lists extremely ineffective. Forgetting the ones you did a week ago... Wasting time flipping through words you already know. That's it! You're now ready to start reviewing. 400 SAT Words Why 400 words? It's based on a complex algorithm that gets closer and closer to timing your brain's memory based on your responses.
